An island goes missing in Nipon!

by Nouf alsiyabi

A small rocky island off the northern coast of Nipon is nowhere to be found. Niponese authorities are still researching this out of the ordinary incident. The island is believed to have been washed away by the striking cyclone that took place last week. The island, known as Sushi Land, was officially registered as a Niponese Island in 2005 and is considered to be a vital source of income for Niponese economy due to the large revenues it generates from its touristic charm. The island is 3.4 meters above sea level and was visible from every corner in northern Nipon but now it has disappeared. Thankfully the island's population have all been vacuumed before the cyclone

According to Sony Arixon, a coast guard official, islands going missing is an uncommon but possible post cyclones incidences. However it never took place in Nipon. The vanshing of this island may affect Nipon's economy and flora and fauna since Sushi Land enjoyed a spectacular beauty owed to its pink colored sands and cola rivers. Unfortunately there is nothing "we can do about it" says Arixon. Nipon is now ensuring it protects its off coast islands by building research centers to cease such tragedies. Nipon is already an island state and the protection of its off coast islands is a big challenge, considering are a matter of dispute that many of these islands with neighboring countries like China and West Borea. Ironically, Nipon is prone to natural disasters like tsunamis and earthquakes and according to officials such disasters can lead to remerge of missing islands. Just last year, Nipon added a new island to its list after a rocky outcrop emerged from the ocean following an earthquake and in 2003 another island appeared some 300 meters south of Ramen Land-Nipon's Capital- engulfing an already existing island. Initially, the phenomenon raised fears of mysterious seismic activity, but geologists said it was probably the result of a landslide that pushed the underwater surface up.

Football and manners mix well

By: Maaraj Al- Khanbashi

Starting from an early age, many youngsters especially boys become fascinated and interested in football. They grow up and become interested in becoming football players. Many of them work hard and become popular and famous. People love them and want to take pictures with them and newspapers conduct interviews with them, however not all football players play good enough to receive trophies like the golden foot. Mr. Bunny is the most famous football player in Bayanistan. He plays in the central line and has preformed well over the past 20 years of his career. He was even nominated to win the golden foot trophy when he participated in the 2015 World Cup Championship. However due to miscommunication, Bunny did not win. In the middle of a game he got into a conflict with the competing team and this resulted in him being expelled from participating in any football match for 2 years after he has hit one of the players. This shows that behavior and manners come before any game even if it meant competition. Bunny could have won but his low manners stop him from doing so. On the other hand Mr. Kitty Cat was one of the least known football players in the country. He only participated in specific games as an alternate

However during one of the matches, a member of the competing team fell and broke his leg. Mr. Kitty Cat stopped the game and stopped playing and he hurried to help him despite being infamous and addressed as an alternate player. Such behavior led to win the golden foot price! without raising a finger. Bayanistan the landof football legends. In May 2004, the Bayanistani team won the nomination to World Cup after beating the Mazoonistani team in penalty kicks. Later, the winning team competed with Coffeezil team but despite his long standing experience in this field, Coffezil lost to Bayanistan. For the first time in history, the famous football players of North Asia lost to Bayanistan after the team won in the very last minute by a "lucky kick". Bayanistan team made a promise to the people of the country that the 2004 World Cup will be theirs no matter what. They fulfilled their promise and the team won after 5 more attempts. "against" "excellent" teams. In the next round, Bayanistan participated again in the 2008 World Cup. This time it was hosted in Bayanistan and the promise was made that this cup will not leave the borders of this country. Again, the team won the World Cup and therefore, Bayanistan is now called the land of football legends.

The Fort of all forts

The phrase "even older than history" applies well on Bayanistan. This ancient land is jammed with historical monuments that mark the country's 7000 years of history. From the golden-topped pyramids and all the way to exquisite turquoise mosques, Bayanistan has a lot to offer. Each corner of this country has a story to tell. Some 300 km south of Bayanistan's mega city- Buscat- lies the palm-covered oasis of Pahlaa. This ancient town is said to be the oldest town in the country with excavations suggesting that life thrived here as early as the 3rd century BC. The town has its root anchored deep into the soils of civilization and the abundance of ancient walls, burial mounds, ancient temples and palaces is enough to prove so. Nevertheless, the town reached its glory in the 16th and 17th centuries AD. e the that time this during was It dynasty Dhiyabi- Althe of mahrajas the of majority The. control took science, schools, mosques, libraries were forts and palaces, centers their all Among. regin their at built fairytale the stands masterpieces dropping-jaw its with Fort Kibreen.
